

Hospitality Manager - Level 4 Higher Apprenticeship

Kitchen Managers/Head chefs take responsibility for the delivery of consistent levels of food preparation, cooking and service, typically in high volume and often fast paced or complex production catering kitchens.

High levels of financial accountability, adherence to strict procurement, stock management and food safety requirements provide a challenging environment which needs to be managed with a considerable amount of expertise.

Similar to the hospitality supervisor's apprenticeship, the hospitality manager apprenticeship is for those working within a variety of hospitality establishments but generally with a focus on a specific area of responsibility and are integral to the running of the organisation.

The hospitality manager's focus can include people management, budget control, customer experience using high-level skills and knowledge to meet business needs.

Delivery method – 121 work based delivery and/or monthly day release
