

Creative Practice: Fashion Design and Business - Level 3 Diploma (UAL)

If you are interested in launching your own fashion brand, this course provides an opportunity to explore, develop and extend your creativity with stimulating and challenging studies. You will increase your skills and knowledge by completing projects and assignments that are based on realistic fashion workplace situations, activities, and demands required by the industry. Part of your course will be carried out at Fashion Enter where you will work with people from within the fashion industry to gain first-hand experience.

You will learn a range of disciplines such as fashion illustration, pattern cutting and sewing skills, marketing, and business studies, and build on the knowledge of traditional and digital printing skills using state-of-the-art digital ethical technologies.

Throughout the course, you will develop your problem-solving, financial, marketing and analytical skills by learning how to use data to improve sales and increase profits. We'll introduce economic theories and explore how this affects brands and organisations. You'll also be encouraged to develop your entrepreneurial mindset and creativity, so you can create and manage your brand using a live retail shop and retail site to sell your collection.

Day-to-day, you will engage in practical workshops, lectures, gallery visits, and independent research. You will learn new skills and develop experience using several specialist materials, techniques, and processes. You will also develop your presentation and communication skills through contextual studies, ideas and concepts, visual communication, and through presentations to tutors and peer groups. All teaching staff are experts in their fields and are passionate about encouraging their students to uniquely expand their fashion design, business, and textile skills.

The highlight of the course is when students create a mini collection and a marketing plan to launch both physically and digitally online. This innovative course prepares students to understand the different aspects of fashion today, so they are business ready for either a career within the industry or to launch their brand.
